

WELCOME

Before I came to MMAP, school just never seemed that important; kids like me didn't go to college. In fact, according to those around me, I only had two options: end up involved in drugs and jail, or start a family at a young age and work a minimum-wage job. In hindsight, I realized that until the summer of 2010, I never did anything to show people my potential. It was not until that summer that I, in a sense, grew up.

During the Teen Mural Program, people depended on me to succeed, and I stepped up. For the first time, I was able to express myself intellectually with adults who understood where I was coming from and believed in me. They did not accept my excuses or pessimism. It was because of that attitude that I was able to look clearly at where I was in life, and see the struggles of those who had not had the opportunity to pursue a higher education. That summer, I had to make a decision. I could be more productive in the activities I was involved in, be more attentive in school, and more responsible outside of school, or I could be the same person I was. I decided I would no longer be that person. Since coming to MMAP, my vision for my own life has completely changed. I became a 3.8 GPA student, and will start community college in the fall with academic scholarships. I will attend a four-year university, and also pursue a law degree, so that one day, I will be able to help give my community a voice.

Sincerely,

CHRISTIAN

Class of 2011

Through the Teen Mural Program, I received the opportunity to engage myself with both present and future leaders of the world. I learned essential life lessons: how to interact with and lead others. Before I came to MMAP, I constantly wanted things to go my way, and I got upset if situations did not turn out how I wanted. For example, during the program, I recall disagreeing with some of my colleagues over the choice of imagery for the mural. Normally, I would have argued until everyone agreed with me. But MMAP required I learn from others and accept their ideas as equal to mine. So I compromised, and it turns out that sometimes their choices are better than mine. MMAP taught me how important it is to learn from and respect others' ideas, even when they are different from mine.

I have a gritty, "go-getter" attitude and a constant thirst for more, and I channel these feelings towards progressing my academic career. I approach every day with the mindset that I have to earn what is mine and show my people in East Palo Alto what is possible; that we can expand our horizons without forgetting where we came from. This fall, I will attend Santa Clara University with the vision of becoming a doctor. I hope to come back to my community after I have my degree to confront the prominent health issues facing East Palo Alto—I don't want people in the future to be struggling the way people struggle today. I want to show youth that drugs are not actually "cool," and that they do in fact have both short and long-term consequences. As a doctor, I want to help people lead positive, healthy lives. What I learned at MMAP will help guide me towards this goal, and for the rest of my life.

Peace!

MURAL MEANING

A LOOK INTO OUR FUTURE: VISION BECOMES REALITY

This mural's story begins at the vivid eye at the top of the roof, representing the youth's powerful vision of peace and unity for the community. Its bands of color symbolize the synthesis of knowing the past, acting in the present, and achieving in the future.

Pathways from the eye are painted to represent the different forms technology that thrive in our community and are used to connect cultures across geopolitical lines. For example, we see how social media has evolved to provide strong communicative outlets that cultivate relationships. When we utilize these powerful tools that are revolutionizing our society, we become more efficient in communicating our vision.

In the middle of the mural, youth from around the globe protest in solidarity. The raised hands express the desire for peace in East Palo Alto's future. While the "I (heart) EPA" bracelets represent unity in EPA across all cultures and demographics, a hand holds a microphone representing the power and capacity young people have to bring their vision to the world through their lyrics. From singing to spoken-word, the arts provide unique tools for change and the creation of a positive culture in our community.

At the bottom of the mural, the hand paints a spiral galaxy, coiling the extensive vision of the youth. This vision is so immense that it will continue to spread throughout the world. This mural reminds us that if we put our visions into action, there will be no limits to what we can achieve.

MURAL VERSE

The eye you see reps more than a visual
Symbolizin the power of an individual
Got the colors movin down to earth
Showin the connection of tech across the universe
Cauzin the solution of a revolution
Endin disputin, wit peace, no refutin
Voices bein heard with utmost clarity
Youth globally protestin in solidarity
Hands shakin - Peace in EPA - drastic
Rockin bracelets meanin the unity of demographics
Gota mic, speak into it, people hear it
Some fear it, cauz it shows the impact of lyrics
On a global scale, we never fail
Cauz the galaxy means you can prevail
By puttin no limits on a vision in action
Cauzin no faction, instead satisfaction

MMaplication effect

The MMAPlication Effect is the process by which the meanings, messages and imagery of the mural is shared throughout the community through various art forms. This year, Teen Mural Assistants created tshirts, posters, hip hop verses, spoken word poems, dances and individual vision masterpieces. Here are some of their artwork promoting their positive vision.

*This is my Vision for EPA
It's gonna be reality, here in the bay
There's gonna be some change
And it begins with me
I wanna see some peace
Here in my community*

MY PERSONAL VISION

by Broderick

A visionary to me is something that I want to be so I can take my imagination and make it a reality. I would change all of the empty lots and build something that all people in EPA could see without going on the freeway or buying something.

*Children in the streets say,
"Don't worry about me!"
But they lack the ability to see
The pain they put through me
A change of our ways need to happen
To stop the mental kidnappin'*
